

BOX TURTLE

North America

The front and back of the lower shell are hinged and allow the turtle to close his shell to avoid danger. The oldest recorded life-span is 138 years for this species, though it is thought that they can live much longer.