

HOODED MERGANSER

Mergus cucullatus

Central North America

This species eats fish, and they are able to change the refractive properties of their eyes to enhance underwater vision. Their nictating membrane acts as a pair of goggles protecting the eye during swimming.